To whom it may concern

I am the Facilities Project Leader of Bard Medical at the Medical Division headquarters in Covington, Ga.

I confidently recommend Pattillo Construction and the Pattillo Construction team for commercial and industrial facility construction projects. I had the good fortune of having Pattillo Construction as my General Contractor on a recent capital project with a very challenging budget and schedule.

The results of this project were more than satisfactory. From the high level organization representation to the field superintendent overseeing the actual work, the staff was professional, cooperative and reactive.

Pattillo was awarded this interior renovation project in a highly competitive bidding process, proving their ability to competitively and successfully bid in a global corporate environment.

The Pattillo team proactively identified options and solutions to challenges that inevitably occurs in a complex renovation project with multiple stakeholders. The Pattillo team creatively navigated through adversities throughout the project as they arose. Pattillo challenged their team to complete the project before the scheduled and published due dates.

The success of any project depends on the team assembled, and the team's ability to communicate and work collaboratively. Pattillo has decades of experience in this industry and their overall performance is a testimony on how they remain a leading firm in this industry.

I invite inquiry concerning the performance of this company.

Sincerely,

Eddie Huckaby, FMP
